

THURSDAY, OCTOBER 4, 1744.

Yesterday arriv'd a Mail from Holland.

Rome, September 19.

On the 12th of this Month there passed by this City 13 Prisoners that were carrying to the Camp of Prince Lobkowitz; six of them were Spaniards, and the other seven, Austrian Deserters; who, as we are inform'd, were hang'd up the Day before Yesterday, with little Ceremony. On the 15th a Courier pass'd thro' this City from Vienna, and continued his Route for the Camp, without leaving, as usual, any Dispatches for the Ministers. On the 16th Cardinal Alexander Albani received an Express from Prince Lobkowitz, upon which his Eminence, and M. de Thun, instantly repair'd to the Camp, where a grand Council was held on the present State of Affairs; and particularly, on the last Instructions Prince Lobkowitz had receiv'd from the Court. At the Rising of this Council of War, an Express was instantly dispatch'd to Florence. The late Mutinies in the Spanish Camp, which seem'd to indicate a speedy Retreat, were only Feints, in order to have drawn Prince Lobkowitz into beginning his Retreat towards Lombardy, upon which they knew his Highness was resolv'd, in order to succour the King of Sardinia. But Prince Lobkowitz was not to be drawn into the Snare, tho' the Design was perfectly well laid; and when Count de Gages saw that the Austrians remain'd firm in their Posts, he immediately recall'd his Artillery, and has since been reinforc'd by 1500 old Troops, and double that Number of new-raisd Forces.

Naples, September 15. A Report prevails here, as if a new Treaty of Neutrality was concluded between our Court and that of Vienna; by which the Spaniards are allow'd free Passage back again into Catalonia, and the Army of Prince Lobkowitz is to retire without Molestation. We are, however, clearly of Opinion, that this Rumour is only an Artifice made use of by the Government; partly to quiet the Populace, and partly to defeat the Designs of the House of Austria, of whom we daily take up and confine many; at the same time that we employ all the Precautions possible for putting our Sea Coasts in such a Posture of Defence, as that the English, if they should attempt it, may not be able to make any Impression.

Lisbon, Sept. 19. The English Fleet, consisting of 31 Ships of War, two Fire Ships, three Bomb Vessels, and six Transports, sail'd from hence, very unexpectedly, on the 13th, steering to the West. We attribute this to their receiving an Account, that the Brest Squadron was arriv'd in the Mediterranean. This Morning it is generally reported, that Vice-Admiral Rowley is sail'd for Portmahon. We have certain Intelligence from Genoa, that a Manifesto is in the Press, and will be speedily, if it is not already published; containing an Exposé of the Motives, which have induced the most Serene Republic to grant a Body of 12,000 Auxiliaries to the two Crowns; as also to permit a Part of their Army to take Winter Quarters in the Territories of that Republic. This Morning arriv'd an Express from Prince Lobkowitz, since which, it is generally reported, that his Highness propos'd to march with his Army back into Lombardy, the Day after to To-morrow; and it is thought, a Part of his Forces will Winter in this Duchy, in order to prevent any Attempts that may be made upon it, by the King of the Two Sicilies.

Lisbon, September 14. The Squadron commanded by Admiral Balchen, anchor'd on the 9th of this Month in the Height of the Rock, at some Distance from this City; the next Morning Vice-Admiral Schryer enter'd this Port with three Dutch Men of War, in order to take on board Water, and other necessary Provisions; after which, he will sail immediately to rejoin the English Fleet. All the Transports that were here, together with the Princess Caroline Man of War, sail'd from hence the Day before Yesterday, in order to join Admiral Balchen, who will meet them to Portmahon, where they will, probably, sail with Vice-Admiral Rowley, and the Fleet under his Command.

Berlin, October 3. The Corps of the deceased Margrave Frederick William, was Yesterday interr'd with all the Funeral Pomp due to his high Birth. When the Generals and other Officers of Distinction, who surrender'd at Prague, presented their Swords to his Majesty, he receiv'd them immediately, and invited them to a grand Entertainment, at which, the Bishop was also present. According to the Capitulation, the King grants his Permission to the Count de Harfch, to go for two Months to Vienna; and promises also Passports to the rest of the Officers, to retire where they think fit, till such time as they shall be exchanged. General Count Ogilvy, titular Governor of Prague, is not made Prisoner of War. There was an Article offer'd in the Capitulation, for preserving the Deserters from suffering Death, but his Majesty refus'd to hear of it; these poor Creatures were deliver'd up by the Austrians, at the Time the Garrison march'd out, and being drawn into a hollow Square, were surrounded by nine Battalions of Foot; when an Officer from his Majesty acquainted them, that as the King knew no Reason why they should desert, he imputed it to Madness and Folly, and therefore granted them his Pardon. His Majesty has also permitted most of the Bohemian Militia, which were taken in that Place, to return Home. The last Letters we had from the Army, were dated from the Camp at Woltitz, near Tabor, the 25th of last Month, and bring Advice, that General Nassau had invest'd that City, the Austrian Garrison of which, consist'd of 2000 Men. They talk'd, at first, of holding out the Place to the last Extremity, but when the Artillery arriv'd, they thought fit to capitulate, and were permitted to march out with all the Honours of War. This Post is thought to be of very great Importance.

Vienna, September 27. Prince Charles set out on the 23d, at Eleven at Night, for Bohemia. The Junction of his Army with that of Count Balthasi, will be performed this Day in the Circle of Bilfen. We have certain Intelligence that 20,000 Hungarians are on the Point of entering Silesia; and that they will speedily be follow'd by 20,000 more. General Harfch is arriv'd here, by the Leave of the King of Prussia, in order to justify his Conduct in the Surrender of the City of Prague, after six Month's open Trenches. We have certain Intelligence, that a Corps of Prussian Troops have lately enter'd Moravia, and that the grand Army, under the Command of the King himself, directs its March towards Linz. We are employ'd in sending vast Quantities of Arms into Hungary.

Frankfort, October 4. The Elector Palatine, who arriv'd here Yesterday incognito, under the Name of Count Ravenslein, went immediately to pay his Respects to the Emperor and Empress, by whom he was receiv'd with all imaginable Tokens of Affection and Respect. This Morning he paid a Visit to the Imperial Prince, and afterwards dined in the Empress's Apartment, with their Imperial Majesties, and his Imperial Highness. P. William of Hesse Cassel paid a Visit to his Electoral Highness this Day. The Day of the Emperor's Departure is not yet fix'd, but it is thought, it will be some time this Week; because our Magistracy, at the Request of his Imperial Majesty, have order'd 150 Horses to be kept ready for his Service, at a Moment's Warning. He is to proceed directly to Dunbelspeil. Yesterday, at Five in the Evening, the Court receiv'd an Express from Field Marshal Count Seckendorff, with the Important News, that the Prince of Saxe-Hildburghausen, at the Head of a Body of Imperial Troops, had taken the City of Donawert by Assault; and had likewise made themselves Masters of the Bridge which the Austrians had thrown over the Danube. Major-General Count de St. Germain, and Colonel Gesehrey, were wounded in this Action; the latter, as it is thought, mortally. The Baron de Ingelheim arriv'd the Day before Yesterday in this City, from the Elector of Cologne, and had, Yesterday, a very long Audience of his Imperial Majesty, in relation, as it is said, to Matters of great Importance.

Hague, October 9. We have receiv'd lately the Confirmation of two very important Pieces of News; the first, that her Imperial Majesty of all the Russias is determin'd punctually to fulfil her Engagements with the Courts of Vienna and London. The other, that the Court of Dresden has actually march'd 20 Battalions, and as many Squadrons, into Bohemia, in order to cover the City of Egga, which is in Danger of being attack'd by the Prussians. We have also another Piece of News of great Consequence from Warsaw; viz. that the Poles have resolv'd to form a grand Camp of Observation on the Frontiers of Silesia. According to the last Advices from Brussels, General Count Chanclos had rejoin'd the Army of the Allies with the Detachment under his Command; and that, on the 1st of this Month, the Army had offer'd Battle to the French, who retir'd towards Courtrai.
